Emory’s Artists’ Archives: Managing Personal Collections & Creative Legacies

Group Name: Emory’s Artists’ Archives: Managing Personal Collections & Creative Legacies

Purpose/Description: Offer an annual summer workshop for local Atlanta artists around long-term management and preservation of their records and materials, including digital, media-based, and ephemeral artwork.

Mission: Keep it causal, make it meaningful, spark conversations rather than offer lectures, create networks, foster community, inspire change, offer practical take-aways

Scope: Engage Atlanta visual artists whose archives Emory may someday be interested in collecting and function as a resource for a community that does not have many other options to gain insight on managing personal collections effectively.

Deliverables:

- A workshop curriculum, based loosely on the material provided by Artists’ Studio Archives, http://artiststudioarchives.org/, and updated annually in the Spring
- An artist invitation guest list consisting of diverse local artists working in a variety of mediums
- Summer workshop that offers practical advice
- Libguide to market the service, park resource for workshop participants and other artists, and create a community around sharing best practices.
